Risk Factors

Investing in the Company's ordinary shares involves a high degree of risk. The following summarises the principal risks. You should read the full risk disclosures in the Company's published documents and announcements before investing.

01 Concentration and AI-sector risk. The portfolio is concentrated in a number of private AI companies, which may or may not achieve their stated objectives. Adverse company-specific, technological, competitive, regulatory or market developments could materially reduce NAV.

04 Investment access. Access to sought-after investments is not guaranteed.

07 In-kind contributions and dilution. The Company may issue shares for cash or in exchange for private-company interests. Future issues may dilute existing shareholders.

10 Key personnel and limited track record. The Company depends on a small number of directors and executives and their relationships. Its current strategy has a limited operating history, and its objectives may not be achieved.

13 Costs and fees. Although the Company charges no management or performance fees, its expenses and any fees or carried interest within underlying holding structures may impact the valuation uplifts observed publicly.

02 Valuation of private holdings. Private investments have no liquid market price. Valuations may not reflect current conditions or the amounts ultimately realised.

05 Portfolio-company performance. Portfolio companies may require further funding or fail to execute their business plans, adversely affecting the value of the Company's holdings.

08 Share price and liquidity. AIM carries a higher investment risk than markets for larger companies. The shares may be volatile, illiquid and subject to wide bid-offer spreads, and may trade at a substantial discount or premium to NAV.

11 Significant shareholders. Certain shareholders, including directors and management, may have significant interests and may exercise substantial influence over the Company and shareholder resolutions.

14 Currency, dividends and tax. The Company is exposed principally to the US dollar and does not expect to pay dividends. Tax treatment depends on individual circumstances, may change and may include rules applicable to offshore entities.

03 Illiquidity of underlying assets. Private investments, including those held through intermediated structures, may be subject to fees, carried interest, lock-ups and transfer restrictions. The Company may be unable to realise them at its preferred time or price.

06 Limited information rights. As a minority, and sometimes indirect, investor, the Company may have limited access to financial and operating information, which may be unaudited or obtained from third parties.

09 Geopolitical and regulatory risk. Portfolio companies may be affected by regulatory change, foreign-ownership restrictions, export controls, trade disputes or other geopolitical developments, which could affect their value or the Company's ability to hold or realise them.

12 Non-UK incorporation. As the Company is incorporated outside the UK, shareholder rights, protections and remedies may differ from those applying to UK-incorporated companies.

15 Forward-looking statements. Portfolio and NAV targets are aims rather than forecasts. They rely on current assumptions and may not be achieved.

01

Value is being created in private.

Many of the world's best AI companies are staying private for longer than any generation of companies before them, which can mean that most of the value is created before they ever list. By the time an IPO arrives, the founders and early backers have already made most of their returns.

02

Most investors are locked out.

Getting into these names has been restricted to a narrow set of investors. SPVs with multi-year lock-ups, gated private vehicles, and founders' networks you weren't invited into. No accreditation? No relationship? No access.

03

Shaires opens the door.

Shaires is built to change that. Buy shares on AIM like any other stock. No restrictions. No lock-up. No accreditation. Tradeable from day one.

Why Invest in Shaires?

01

AI and technology companies

Gain exposure to a curated portfolio of around 15 leading private AI and technology companies. As many of today's leading AI businesses remain private for longer, Shaires gives investors the opportunity to participate in their growth before they reach public markets.

02

AI-focused portfolio

Rather than tracking hundreds of technology companies, Shaires invests in a carefully selected portfolio of businesses developing and commercialising next-generation AI technologies.

03

Trade with daily liquidity

Shaires is quoted and traded on AIM, offering daily liquidity, unlike traditional private market investments. More information on liquidity can be found on page 4.

04

An innovative in-kind contribution model

Shaires issues its own publicly traded shares in exchange for private holdings from founders, employees and early investors, giving contributors liquidity and public investors access to leading private AI and technology companies.

05

Built for long-term value creation

The portfolio combines exposure to high-growth private companies with a structure designed to expand holdings over time, supporting long-term growth in net asset value.

06

Low-cost structure, aligned management

Management are long-term stakeholders. Total expenses are expected to be approximately 1% of NAV, helping investors retain more of their returns.

How Shaires Works

SHAIRES HOLDINGS LTD

Shaires sits between the public market and the private AI companies it invests in. Cash and eligible shares flow in. Investors hold a quoted share they can trade daily.

How Value is Created

The Company's objective is long-term growth in net asset value per share. Five mechanisms compound over time:

01

Invest in leading private companies.

Deploy cash and in-kind contributions into leading private AI companies before they reach public markets.

02

Grow as valuations rise.

Portfolio companies grow and raise successive funding rounds. Any valuation gains flow through to NAV per share.

03

Expand the portfolio.

New share issuance and in-kind contributions add holdings, diversifying the portfolio across the AI value chain.

04

Access more companies.

Greater scale improves access to sought-after allocations and spreads running costs across a larger asset base.

05

Realise gains, then reinvest.

IPOs and exits convert private gains into realised value, which is recycled into the next generation of private AI companies.

REPEAT, TARGETING LONG-TERM GROWTH IN NAV PER SHARE

Three Things to Take Away

SHAIRES HOLDINGS LTD

01

Value is being created in private.

The companies defining this cycle are being built in private, and they are staying private far longer than the generation before them.

02

Public investors have been outside it.

That is where the value is being created, and access has been restricted to a narrow set of insiders, SPVs and gated private vehicles.

03

Shaires is built to open that door.

One quoted share, on AIM, that's internally managed and has a low-cost structure.

Everything covered here is set out in this document and in the Company's announcements, which are published on the regulatory news service and on our website.
